Former State Official To Speak At Awards Dinner

Francis Lorenz, former Illinois state treasurer, will be the speaker at the Mokena Chamber of Commerce distinguished citizens award dinner at 7 o'clock Saturday night (Jan. 19) in Lincoln-Way high school. "Service to Your Community," will be his subject, which will be quite timely since the guests of honor were selected because of their service to Mokena.

There are six to be awarded plaques in token of their community service—Mrs. Margaret Semmler, who with her husband, the late William Semmler was in the printing and newspaper publishing business here for more than 40 years; Mrs. Elizabeth Cappel who retired last year as school superintendent after more than 30 years of teaching; Dr. Ernest G. McMahan, a practicing physician here for 40 years, having come to Mokena in July, 1922; the Rev. William J. Riemann, now of Chicago Heights where he moved following his retirement as pastor of St.

John United Church of Christ where he served for 17 years and 30 years in other pastorates; Arthur Omland, who has been an active force in Boy Scout work in Mokena for 22 years, half of them as scoutmaster, and Robert Munch, Mokena's only Eagle Scout and also an active figure in scouting.

The plaques are to be awarded by Everett Cooper, Mokena banker.

Mayor Charles Swanberg is to serve as master of ceremonies. According to Walter Welsch, chairman of the ticket committee, more than 200 tickets have been sold to date and there are some still available. Tickets are $3 per person.

The dinner will be served in the all-purpose room at the high school and the women members of the Lincoln-Way Band Boosters will prepare the dinner. Organ music will be played thru the dinner hour by Wayne Swanberg. Anthony Dina, president of the Chamber of Commerce will speak briefly.

Mokena Makes It Official For Curfew and One-Ways

Two one-way streets and a curfew law for minors are now official in Mokena. The village board at its meeting last week adopted ordinances authorizing both.

As was announced previously Midland avenue has been designated as a street for north bound traffic only between Front and Third streets and parking is banned on the west side of the street. And the other street is Second, and is to carry west bound traffic only from Division to wolf road with parking banned on the south side.

The curfew law is to apply to all minors under 18 years of age. They are forbidden to be on the streets or in places of public entertainment between the hours of 10 p.m. and 5 a.m. unless they have a permit from the village marshal or are accompanied by their parents or an adult designated by the parents to serve as an escort.

Operators of places of public entertainment are required to keep minors out of their places of business between the above prescribed hours. Fines for violation by minors or operators of places of entertainment are fixed by the ordinance, running from $1 to $50 for the youngsters and $1 to $200 for the people engaged in operating places of public entertainment. The ordinance also provides that the police department keep separate records on curfew cases.

Fines for violating the one-way street measures are to range from $1 to $200.

Attribute Recluse's Death To Exposure, Malnutrition

Funeral arrangements for Mrs. Mabel Lloyd Moore, 83, a New Lenox recluse who died last Sunday morning, Jan. 13, were being held up as authorities pressed their search for relatives.

Since her husband, Samuel E., a former railroad man, died around 1934 she has lived alone. The couple came to New Lenox about 1932. Previously they had lived at Chicago and DesPlaines, Mr. Moore is buried at DesPlaines in Ridgewood cemetery. The couple had no children and so far the quest for relatives has been barren.

Mrs. Moore liked privacy and seldom left her premises. John Burlingame, who lives not too far away, would do occasional errands for her. He would go to the bank and bring food to the house.

He saw her on Wednesday evening of last week for a few minutes, he said. At that time she was complaining of a pain in her back. It had been so severe that she had called a doctor the Sunday night previous. She was found lying on the floor in the house on Saturday morning. Charles Leech, of Joliet, who delivers milk in New Lenox, stopped at the Moore house Saturday morning and noted that the milk he had delivered Thursday was still standing where he had placed it. Leech notified Police Chief George Kennedy. The chief and Officer James Luther found the house locked so they forced the door.

Mrs. Moore was lying on the floor, uncovered save for the clothing she wore. The house was unheated and her extremities were frostbitten. She was conscious, however, altho her speech was slurred, indicating, it was said, that she had suffered a stroke and had been unable to help herself after she had fallen.

John Baskerville was called and took Mrs. Moore to Silver Cross hospital in an ambulance. Her condition was described as critical and ascribed to malnutrition and exposure. She died early the next morning.

Derailment At Mokena Ties Up R.I. Main Lines

Two cars of an east-bound thru freight on the Rock Island were derailed east of the Mokena depot Sunday morning and as a result both main lines were closed to traffic for several hours. Trains were routed around, however, on sidings.

Wrecking crews arrived at 9:18 a.m. and it was 1 o'clock before the first train was able to go thru and 6 p.m. before regular traffic resumed.

A piggy-back car and a car of fresh meat were the two derailed out of a 65-car train. Just the wheels left the rails and neither car overturned.

A 12 to 15 mile an hour wind out of the west with the temperature down near the zero mark hampered the crews replacing rails and ties.

No one was injured.

Plan Frankfort Canvass Sunday In Palsy Drive

There will be a door-to-door canvass at Frankfort Sunday, Jan. 20, in behalf of the annual Cerebral Palsy fund raising drive.

The drive was held last Sunday in other communities but there was no team for Frankfort, it was reported at headquarters.

Ned Grabavoy, drive chairman for Will county said this week that a special team will be sent to Frankfort, made up of student nurses from St. Joseph hospital or students from the College of St. Francis.

Some $150 was collected in Mokena last Sunday.

School Favors Keeping Town Collector System

The Frankfort grade school board is opposed to any move which might lead to elimination of the town collector.

Town collectors are elected with other township officials. Their duty is to collect taxes due each spring from the time the bills go out until June 1, when the collection chores are taken over by the county treasurer as county collector.

Recently Edward Liberty, chairman of the Will county board of supervisors, was quoted as saying that the office of town collector could be dispensed with and the work done by the county treasurer.

So far the proposal is a verbal opinion, and nothing along this line has been submitted to the county board.

That the supervisors may know their opinion on such a proposal the Elwood school district, No. 203, and now the Frankfort school district, No.

157-C thru their boards have expressed their views in resolutions.

The Frankfort board's resolution, addressed to Supervisor George J. Tate (Frankfort twp.) reads as follows: "Be it resolved that this board is opposed to elimination of the township collector as it will cost this taxing body revenue for the following reason:

"This board is cognizant of the fact that the county collector's fee is 3% while taxes paid to the township are at a 2% collector's fee. Without reducing the county fee, an additional 1% would be taken from monies paid thru the township collector presently.

"This board is not aware of any statements, reports, or information in that any savings would result, but rather an increased cost of collection by proposed action."

The resolution was unanimously adopted and is signed by Walter L. Haakinson, president of the Frankfort school board, and Lucille C. Hansen, board secretary.

Copies were sent to the newspapers, the Frankfort village board County School Supt. Verne Crackel and the surrounding school districts.

Petition To Annex Schmuhl School to New Lenox Dist.

A petition asking that the Schmuhl school district, No. 121, be annexed to the New Lenox grade school district, No. 122, is to be heard by the Will county board of school trustees on Tuesday night, Jan. 29, at 7:30 o'clock in the supervisors room in the courthouse at Joliet.

This announcement was made by County Supt. Verne Crackel, who by virtue of his office is secretary of the board of school trustees.

The petition was filed with Supt. Crackel last Thursday. It purports to carry the names of 255 of the legal voters of the district. The petitioners submitted with it figures to the effect that a census of the district shows there are 324 legal voters there.

Such a petition seeking to merge one district with another must bear the signatures of two-thirds of the legal voters of said district, Crackel explained. Two-thirds of 324 would be 216, it was pointed out, so on the face of the petition it allegedly carries more than enough signatures to bring it before the board of school trustees.

Persons for or against the proposed move, living either in Schmuhl district or the New Lenox district, may appear at the hearing Jan. 29 to voice their opinions, it was said.

Members of both school boards can also appear to express their views.

However, it was explained, hearings on such question are not decided according to the number of objectors or proponents. The county board of school trustees, it was stated has two factors to consider at such a hearing—what is best for the district and what is best for the children.

There has been considerable discussion of the Schmuhl school situation over the years. There has been talk of annexing the district to the New Lenox district for sometime but at the beginning the majority of the people wanted to maintain their own school.

Schmuhl was a one-room school originally but it has been expanded. First the basement was used to make it a two-room school; then three rooms were added and the basement abandoned as a classroom, which leaves it a four room school. The enrollment now is approximately 100.

There are some residents of the district who would retain its identity and others who would merge Schmuhl and Reiter districts.

Some people point out, however, that eventually Reiter may also become a part of the New Lenox district, along with Schmuhl and Marley.

It is reported that two petitions are likely to be filed with the county board of school trustees in the near future involving the Marley district. One would ask that the entire district be added to Dist. 122 at New Lenox, while the other would request that the district be split with one portion being attached to New Lenox and the other section to Mokena.

There is also a possibility seen of petitioning to split the Wietendorf district with that portion lying south of U. S. 30 going to Frankfort and that north of U. S. 30 going to Mokena. A portion of that part north of 30 has already been annexed to the Mokena district.

Mokena Seeks New Police Chief. Bormet Resigns

Mokena is looking for a new police chief. The present chief, Vernon Bormet has resigned, effective Feb. 1, it was revealed following the last meeting of the village board.

Will Tuttle, head of the police department, said that the salary for the new chief will be $400 a month on a 48-hour week basis.

Mayor Charles Swanberg's appointment of H. James Wrath to the Mokena planning commission to fill the vacancy created by the recent resignation of Fred Lehmann was confirmed by the board of trustees, Robert Geuther and Ralph Yunker were re-appointed to the commission for three-year terms.

Mulford Engineering Co. is drawing up a new map of Mokena showing the street names, the various subdivisions and the village boundaries. A copy will be posted at the village hall to serve the public. Copies of the map will be sold by the village for a nominal price, it was stated. The maps are expected to be ready in about 60 days.

There was some discussion by the board on a proposal to install posts along the curb line of the Rock Island parking lot on Front street—or at least the railroad property along there is used for parking by commuters. If the property is shut off from Front street and the people using the lot are compelled to enter a certain way and leave thru a certain exit that it would end the traffic tie-up occasioned by several drivers trying to enter Front street at the same time, is the claim of proponents of the idea. Opponents say that having one entrance and one exit will create more of a traffic problem than exists.

The terms of three village trustees expire this spring, Willard Munch, Henry Shevlin, and Frederick Rauch Jr. They haven't definitely stated they will not seek reelection. On the other hand they have not said they would. The supposition is they will not run.

No one had taken out any petitions from the village clerk as of Monday. First day of filing is next Monday, Jan. 21. Last day for filing is Feb. 25.

Hans Mueller and Ervin Friant are reported to be considering taking out petitions.

Proxy Battle Marks Bank Meeting At Frankfort

A proxy battle that reached the vocal stage on the floor marked the annual stockholders meeting of the Frankfort State bank last week and wound up with a break in the directorate slate.

Attorney George E. Sangmeister was elected to the nine member board of directors with the next highest vote of any of the contenders. Defeated for reelection to the board was Frankfort Township Supervisor George Tate.

Tate received 731 votes. Sangmeister polled 1,045 votes. Those reelected as directors and their votes were: A. H. Krusemark, 1,115; Herman Barleworth, 860, H. A. Heuser, 856; Leroy Bettenhausen, 847; Howard Remien, 845; Arthur Bauch, 813; Alvin Bruggeman, 809 and LeRoy Mager, 808.

There were 992 of the 1,000 bank shares reported represented at the meeting, and a total of 8,729 votes cast. Some 50 stockholders were present.

For some days before the meeting there was a hunt for proxies. Sangmeister was looking for proxies and so were the group making up the board. Every stockholder is entitled to a voice in selecting the directors. The holder of stock can come in and vote it himself or he allows another shareholder to vote it by giving him his proxy. The proxy carrying the latest date is the one that is valid. It was reported that at the meeting a couple of stockholders who had given proxies to Sangmeister showed up in person and that in two or three instances persons who had given him proxies had voided them by giving proxies to one of the directorate slate bearing a later date.

The question of how the vote was to be counted also came up. Krusemark, who is president of the bank, was reported as saying that the stockholders there had never used the cumulative system of voting.

Under cumulative voting a person with, say one share of stock, could vote once each for nine candidates for directors or nine times for one candidate.

Sangmeister reportedly pointed out that under the Corporation Act and the Banking Act cumulative voting was a definite right of stockholders to which Krusemark agreed.

Howard Osmus is then reported to have made a recommendation that cumulative voting be not followed in the selection of directors. Whereupon Herbert Folkers, another attorney who resides at Frankfort arose to ask if this recommendation was intended to deprive him of his right to vote cumulatively as provided by law. Krusemark said that the recommendation was not binding.

Krusemark, according to stockholders present, pointed out that the board of directors have been doing a good job for the bank, the stockholders and the community and he saw no reason why they should not be retained. August Santoro, a law partner of Sangmeister, spoke up at this juncture to point out that this government has been faring very well under the two party system and he saw no reason why another opinion would be detrimental to the operation of the bank. Sangmeister was nominated for the board by Alvin Kohl, a farmer, and the nomination was seconded by Folkers.

At a meeting of the directors which followed the stockholders meeting the same officers were elected, Krusemark, president; Alvin Bruggeman, vice president; Howard Remien, executive vice president and cashier, and Arthur Bauch secretary.

Bedside Teacher To Aid Pupils Confined At Home

A program to aid pupils "homebound" thru illness or injury has been instituted in the Mokena grade school thru board approval with the state picking up a part of the tab for teacher cost.

In explaining the program Supt. James Ennis pointed out that when a child is confined to his home because of illness, excluding contagious diseases of course, or as a result of accident that will keep him away from school for four weeks or longer he will be able to keep up with his studies with the help of a bedside teacher.

Such a youngster may have the service of such a tutor on a five-hour a week basis until he is able to return to school. There will be no charge assessed against the parents for such service. The only thing asked of the parents is that they send a statement from the attending physician to the school. This statement should give the condition of the youngster and the approximate length of time he will have to remain home. The teacher will be paid by the board but the district will be reimbursed by the state, it was explained, for one half of the salary up to $600 a year per pupil.

Pupils receiving such service will be credited with half-day attendance.

Mrs. Charles Neuls has been hired by the board as a part-time custodian at Willow Crest school, replacing Mrs. Gilbert Hurley who is now working full time at Lincoln-Way high school.

VISITING THE CLASSES in the Foreign Language department at Lincoln-Way High School this week is Patricia Alvarez of Mexico City. Miss Alvarez, a college student majoring in elementary education, has been visiting in the home of relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Luckhart of New Lenox. At the left is Miss Alvarez. The other girl is Magdalena Ortega, Miss Ortega, a foreign exchange student from Vina del Mar, Chile, is spending this year at Lincoln-Way high school. Big Fox Hunt Set For Feb. 3 At New Lenox

At an emergency meeting of the New Lenox chapter of the B'r'er Fox Association of America last week-end all foxes and their families were given warning that on Feb. 3 the New Lenox Sportsmen's club is sponsoring a big hunt with the prime objective of killing off all the foxes they can find.

The hunters will tee off, take off-or whatever it is one does when hunting foxes on foot and with shotguns -- from the Lions club headquarters on South Cedar road at 9 o'clock the morning of Feb. 3.

They are to return to the Lions Den around noon, at which time a free lunch will be served. After lunch the hunt will be resumed. Those in charge expect between 200 and 300 hunters will spend the day tramping around the countryside. Last year the hunters killed 13 foxes.

Rifles are banned because anyone hanging away with a rifle, it was explained, might kill some householder in the next township who didn't even know a fox hunt was in progress.

But anyone with a shotgun is welcome and it's free -- except, of course that one has to have a hunting license and that is $3.25 and the hunter has to provide his own shells. The B'r'er Fox Association of America absolutely refuses to furnish ammunition.

"Gang Research"

Senator Douglas of Illinois, who is generally considered one of the more liberal Senators, has something to say about various expenditures of the National Institute of Health, which is the research arm of the government's Public Health Service.

The Senator noted some of the projects undertaken and grants given by the Institute. Among them: "The Oral Health of Icelandic Peoples, $14,030;" "Investigation of Information Contained in Echoes, $13,837;" "Studies of Silent Thinking, $26,565;" "Red Tuna and Yellow Fat Diseases in the Cat, $19,965;" "A Stereostatic Atlas of the Beagle Brain, $9,775."

"Titoism In The Caribbean"

(Industrial News Review)

"The deed had grandeur. Because it did, it astonished and electrified a western world inured to passivity and defensive attitudes."

These are the opening sentences of a brief but impressive article in The Reporter—a leading serious magazine of the liberal persuasion—by Louis Aguilar Leon. He is considering, of course, the action taken by the Administration, at the risk of nuclear war, to halt the Soviet build-up in Cuba, and to force demolition of missile sites that had been built with astonishing speed.

But then Professor Leon—a Cuban who had opposed the Batista regime, and who now is in this country, teaching Latin-American history at Georgetown University—presents qualifications. He goes on: "The deed had grandeur, but some would say that all the grandeur was confined to the deed. Ambiguous rumors, contradictory reports, and spiritless statements multiply. Little defeats are eating away the victory; obscure interests are attempting to minimize the stature of an action in defense of the hemisphere and reduce it to the dimensions of an empty show intended exclusively for the protection of the United States . . . there has loomed on the horizon the incredible chimera of coexistence with Castro, the snare of 'Titoism' in the Caribbean, and the mendacious assertion that the Cuban Communist regime, stripped of its missiles, no longer poses a threat."

That, in the mind of Professor Leon, clearly covers the real and present danger in the Cuban situation as it stands today. Others have questioned whether or not all the Russians advanced arms have been removed from Cuba. It has been suggested that missiles capable of devastating the great Eastern cities, Washington, D. C. included, may still be there, hidden in caves. Professor Leon does not go into such matters as these. He goes much farther, saying, in essence, that we simply cannot tolerate the presence of the Castro government in Cuba—and that attempted coexistence with Castroism would amount to a disaster, and would result in a virtually total collapse of the respect of Latin America for the United States. As he puts it, ". . . the existence of a Tito in Europe represents a deviation in the Communist bloc, but the presence of a Tito in the Caribbean means an irreparable defeat for the democratic bloc."

Professor Leon goes on to argue that we must not take the support we receive from the Latin American nations as a fixed and certain thing. Instead, he states, it is based on a community of interests and will vanish should that be lost. To quote his grim and vivid article once more: "To suggest that without the Russian missiles Castro is no longer a threat is to insult all those who have fought against him since well before the missiles. To mention coexistence now means proclaiming that the democratic principle is not worth defending outside the United States borders. . . it implies abandonment of the common cause and assuring Castro and the Communists of Latin America that they can cast off all restraint. . ."

There are many who will disagree strongly with views such as these. But the position that Professor Leon has stated so well in The Reporter is certainly a position that must be given thoughtful consideration in the difficult and dangerous process of creating and administering high policy.

Hints For Homeowners

Few house plants have achieved the popularity of the African Violet. Violets are quite exacting in their requirements and offer the home gardener a real challenge in getting a continuous display of bloom. It is not uncommon for violets to refuse to bloom even though carefully tended if in an unsatisfactory environment. Every home has a window that will grow excellent African Violets. When you begin growing these plants, try to find this spot immediately. If your plants don't respond favorably in a few weeks, try another location once the plants begin to flower, disturb them as little as possible. African Violets like a temperature of 65 degrees - 75 degrees F. at night and about 10 degrees higher in the daytime. Night temperatures below 60 degrees are undesirable. Proper light is also extremely important. Although African Violets need good light, direct sun should be avoided except in deep winter. In summer, a north window is suitable, especially if not shaded by a porch or tree. As fall approaches, move to a brighter window. Too much light burns leaves and flowers, and the plant appears very compact, with abnormally light-colored foliage. When the plant is in very dim light, there may be lush growth and long leaf-stems but no flowers. Use the nature of the growth as a guide in finding the proper location for your African violets. Turn the plants occasionally for symmetrical development.

Wonderful specimens can be grown under fluorescent lights. Use a 2 tube, 40 watt fixture with reflector, and suspend no higher than one foot above the plants. Light plants for 3 hours a day. If temperatures are correct, fluorescent lighting can be used in the basement or other areas where there is little or no natural lighting. Apply lukewarm water only. When cold water touches the leaves, it usually causes leaf spot - especially when plants are in the sun. Rather than top-watering, many home-gardeners prefer to set the pot in a saucer of water. When you use this method, occasionally apply water from above to wash down accumulated soluble salts. Check soil moisture daily. Aim at moderate, but uniform levels. Some experts believe that the soil should be kept on the dry side. At any rate, avoid over-watering or under-watering - either will interfere flowering.

Well, it looks like the old time drug store that had the shelves filled with jars containing roots, bark, stems, flowers or the whole plant, plus various and sundry herbs, may have a place in the future.

Not only that but there is a chance that the home remedies favored by our ancestors, and the American Indians and African witch doctors may gain some professional standing.

Last week the papers carried a story that the University of Illinois college of pharmacy was planning to spend $285,000 on a special greenhouse at its experimental station near Lisle for the purpose exploring the medicinal properties of various plants.

Even in these days of missile costs and foreign aid, $285,000 is not to be spoken venomously of, and while it might not be more than enough to pay the liquor tab for a UN fact finding committee it is still regarded by most of us as a substantial sum and certainly it is enough to gain respect for lowly herbs and weeds.

Picking up dandelions or piece of mullen for free—well, what do you expect? Think anyone wants any of that stuff? That old wives medicine is for the birds—there are machines now and antibiotics and the other wonder drugs that take care of man's ills today.

When anyone gets a bottle of pills and it costs him $27 plus the war tax he knows they are going to help him. If they cost that much they just have to be good—much better say than $20 dollar pills or $15 or $4 pills—naturally—and as for those cheap remedies around a buck or less—humph! just throwing money away, that's all.

So it stands to reason that if the state university is willing to spend $285,000 of its share of the taxes on a greenhouse to raise vegetation that may possess medicinal properties, all the many growing things that have been successfully used to treat certain ailments and ills for several hundred years become respectable. They have attained status.

If dandelions ever sell for $3 a bloom they will be in great demand and a person would find it difficult to raise one in his lawn.

Thru the ages people who had a natural bent for helping others discovered that certain plants had certain properties that helped in healing man of his ills. This knowledge has been handed down but a lot of it has been discarded or dismissed as old time foolishness.

They knew thru use that certain herbs or certain plants or certain parts of plants could be used to relieve pain, fever, swelling, and wounds. They did not always cure but the same can be said of some of the wonder drugs. But if grandma's remedies didn't cure, at least side effects weren't a problem.

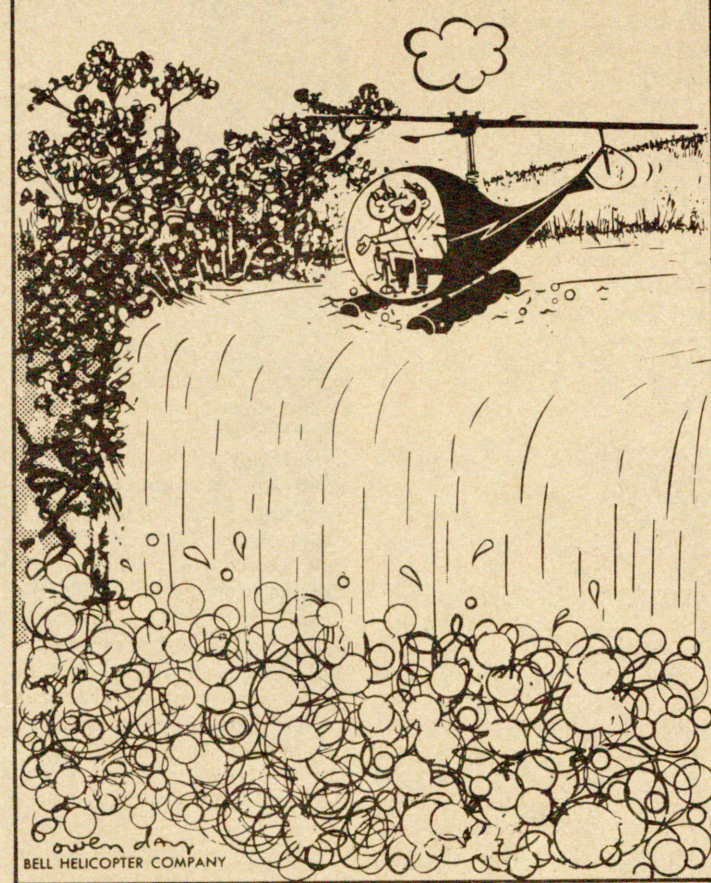

But the medicines of grandma's day had their detractors too. The test on their efficiency, however, rested more on taste than on price. The worse something tasted, or smelt, or burned the greater its power as a healing agent or health restorer.

Tobacco, now getting its lumps from the medicos, was once hailed more for its alleged medicinal properties than for the pleasures gained by smoking or chewing. That's why people started taking snuff, to promote sneezing and the clearing of heads. A chew of tobacco was a handy thing to have for the treatment of stings, cuts and the like. But one has to reach for the methiolate or one of the new fangled antiseptics now because the women of America have just about eliminated the tobacco chewing among the males. Open chewers are still to be found in some sections, especially in those areas where the ladies dip snuff, but in the cities most of the men who use eating tobacco (except professional ballplayers) are mostly sneak chewers, concealing the habit from wives or fiancées to save wear and tear on the eardrums.

Mullen, for example, when used as a tea, was good for hives; in a syrup it was used as a cough remedy.

'COPTER CARTOON

by owen day

"What a life . . . drifting and dreaming down a lazy river . . ."

There were a lot of different things used to brew up concoctions known as teas. Some were palatable and whether they were good as remedies is besides the point—they tasted good.

Perhaps the school of pharmacy will be able to discover why some of these things served as cures. A lot of the people that used them didn't know why such things helped them, they just knew they did.

Some of the things that were remedies in folk medicine have been accepted by the materia medica crowd and are to be found in the pharmacopoeia. After the Illinois college of pharmacy greenhouse gets functioning no doubt some of the other medicines favored by grandma will win recognition.

We would offer a bit of advice to the greenhouse operators, however. Don't plant any sassafras—not if you want room for anything else. That stuff spreads like pigweed and could take over the whole of Lisle.

Another important training meeting for 4-H Club leaders will be held Thursday Jan. 31 in Tinley Park in the "Friendship Room" of the Tinley Park Savings and Loan Association. Crop production in 1962 equaled the record level of two years ago and was one percent above the previous year. This large outpouring was accomplished from the smallest acreage harvested since records began in 1909 and probably the smallest acreage in this century. Record yields were, responsible for this large production. The ability of the American farmer to produce food and fiber is one of the great success stories of this century. This is true in spite of the fact that the farmer has also received much criticism because of the build-up of surplus of farm crops in the hands of the government.

When weeds compete with crops, costly reductions in yields often result. University of Illinois tests indicate that where 50 foxtail plants in each foot of row exist, corn yields are reduced by as much as 23 bushels per acre. With the same number of boxtail plants, soybean yields are reduced by 11 bushels per acre. Good cultural practices and chemical weed control can eliminate this unnecessary reduction in yield. It's not too early to start planning a good weed control program for your farm for next year.

An agricultural economist at the University of Illinois has taken a look into a crystal ball and predicts the following for the long-term future of agriculture: Agriculture will continue to move rapidly towards fewer and larger farms, with the family farm a predominant type of enterprise. Although the agricultural population has dropped more than one-third in the last 20 years, this trend will continue, and further adjustments will be required to maintain adequate incomes for farm people. Output per man-hour is surging upward and will rise by one-third in the next ten years. Farmers will continue to need large amounts of capital for production purposes and for real estate loans.

Housewives will be interested in hearing that Ex-Cell-O Corp. has begun converting its milk packaging equipment to turning out plastic coated rather than wax-coated cartons and expects to complete the change over by the middle of this year. This company is the biggest factor in the milk carton field and industry sources advise that the milk consumer will soon find those leaky milk cartons as a thing of the past.

As predicted by L. O. Hooper, financial columnist for Forbes and well known in financial circles, the Kennedy administration is showing evidence of its ability to secure a tax cut from this Congress. However, there are suggested changes in present tax regulations which are expected to pick up part of lost revenue. Capital gains tax advantages are expected to be changed as to minimum period of holding and also as to other conditions as to eligibility.

Without a tax cut, the deficit for next fiscal year is expected to be large.

Final December retail figures have not been published, but preliminary figures indicate a new record high for department stores. There was a sudden and unexpected surge of buying at the last moment before Christmas. Very bad weather nationally is credited with having caused the delay in holiday season buying. The Department of Commerce reports that retail sales in December were about 7 per cent above 1962 figures.

Analysts of business activity watch for regular business surveys by Purchasing Agents Associations at various points in the country. The Chicago chapter reports that results of inquiry among members indicate considerable optimism as to outlook for 1963. Their survey also showed that inventory accumulation seems to be the point of emphasis rather than reduction.

Financial World notes that General Electric recently made a major advance in producing a low cost fuel cell. The fuel cell which converts chemical energy into electrical energy, has been one of the glamorous items expected of our present scientific revolution. General Electric produces this low cost fuel cell from ceramic and carbon materials with natural gas as the fuel. Reports are that with further development, the unit will produce electricity at costs competitive with diesel electric generators. Applications are expected to expand beyond use in space craft and special military needs, to a number of industrial processes. This is a field that has attracted the science fiction writers.

As stated in recent Financial World articles, large budget deficits do not indicate immediate inflation, but they do create excess purchasing power and do push up labor and commodity costs. If business is good, all this brings about demand for increases at numerous points in the economy.

Many analysts believe that inflation or threats of inflation will be with us for a long time to come. Assuming this to be true, experience indicates investment in well selected common stock as the best way to protect against capital erosion of inflation. This magazine states a well proven investment axiom, that "over the years, stock prices averages have outpaced the rise in cost of living several times over".

Real Estate Board Assails Cook County Board Budget

"We see no particular merit in the claim that your budget has been reduced. . . ." Real-estate Thomas F. Seay told the Cook county board of commissioners at the public hearing held today for the county's 1963 proposed budget.

Seay is second vice president of the Chicago Real Estate Board. Speaking for the 1,800 member realtor organization, he pointed out that the county's proposed $50,769,023 real estate tax levy for 1963 represents "record expenditures for odd-number years."

The realtor said that the county has taken the maximum real property tax rate of $.22 allowed by state law for odd-numbered years to help finance the proposed $200.4 million budget. "In 1962 you levied real property taxes at the maximum $.26 rate permitted in even years -- the additional four cents being allowed for election costs," Seay observed.

The real estate board's statement called for tax reduction thru economies recommended to the county by the Civic Federation, taxpayers' watchdog organization. Speaking for the Civic Federation at the hearing was another realtor, Carroll H. Sudler.

Seay emphasized that "it is obvious that no attempt has been made to levy 1963 real property taxes at anything less than the maximum rate set by statute." In giving reasons for the real estate board's concern about rising real estate taxes, Seay pointed to a recent survey by the organization's renting and management division.

The survey shows, he said, that since 1956 at least 15 percent of the value of existing apartment buildings has been destroyed by high real estate taxes. One hundred forty-eight apartment buildings, randomly selected at various points throughout the city, were included in the survey, Seay reported.

ACP Sign Up Is Underway

Carl M. Bormet, chairman cook County ASC committee has announced that Cook county farmers may now file requests for 1963 ACP practices. Applications should be made at the Cook County ASCS Office, Orland Park or Arlington Heights.

Practices which were recently approved for this county include pasture development, contour stripcropping, limestone, rock phosphate, planting, trees, sod waterways, terraces, tile outlets, tile lines for waterways, drainage ditches, diversions, erosion control dams, sod flumes, cover for wildlife, fish ponds, farm ponds, and forest improvement among others. Of the above practices, nine are new for this year.

In order to earn cost-share assistance, a producer must file an official request before a practice is started. An approval will then be issued by the county committee and the work must be completed within a specified time. Although the basic sign-up period extends from now thru Jan. 31, 1963, requests will be accepted throughout the year as long as funds are available.

The AC program is a conservation service that has been available to farmers in Cook county since 1936. It is based on the frank acceptance of the fact that while needed conservation pays a nation in the long run, many conservation measures do not offer returns to farmers that are attractive enough in the immediate future to get the needed amount of such practices applied.

Mr. Bormet said "Farm families naturally share the aspirations of city people for the necessities as well as for some of the comforts and conveniences of modern living." He added "When the need for conservation practices competes with the need for school clothes and books or eyeglasses or dental work, the conservation often gets 'put off until later'."

Under the ACP, the federal government shares with farmers the cost applying needed conservation practices on the land, it was said. For most practices, farmers pay about half the cost and agree to service and maintain the practices during their normal lifespans. Technical help in planning certain practices is provided by the soil conservation service and the forestry service.

Last year 164 farmers in Cook county established conservation measures as a part of the AC Program. Farmers interested may call at the county office for details.

Proper Lamp Placement Makes For Good Lighting

Well-designed lamps cannot provide shadow - and glare-free light for reading unless you place them properly.

Sue Herndon, University of Illinois home economist, lists some general guides for determining lamp placement.

In living areas, place table lamps so that the base rests about in line with the reader's shoulder. Measure 20 inches left or right of the book center, depending on the table location, and then 16 inches back. An exception to this pattern is the very tall table lamp. It should be placed well back on a low table and as near the rear corner of the adjacent chair as possible.

Arrange shades of pole lamps so that the light beams either up or down and away from the viewer's eyes. Pendant-type lamps may be treated as table lamps when placed at the side of a chair or at each end of a sofa. Or they may be placed behind chairs, following the guide for floor lamps.

When using a table lamp for desk work, place the lamp on the side opposite the hand used for writing, about 12 inches back from the desk edge. This brings the center of the lamp shade about 15 inches away from the work center.

When using a floor lamp for desk work, place the lamp 10 inches in from the front edge of the desk. It too should be placed on the side opposite the writing hand. Lighting experts recommend that floor lamps, preferably the double-swing arm type, be used with drop-leaf-style desks.

Sometimes a pair of pin-ups lamps may be substituted for a desk lamp. To arrange pin-up lamps, attach them to the wall or a board and space them 30 inches apart. They should be no more than 17 inches back from the front edge of the desk. Mount them so that the bottom edge of the lamp shade rests about 15 inches above the desk. When a table lamp is used for reading in bed, the spread of light should be sufficient to permit both body and eye comfort. Measure 22 inches from the center of the reading material out to the table. From this point, measure 16 inches back to the wall. Center lamp here. It will then be about in line with the reader's shoulder. The bottom of the shade should be at eye level, or about 20 inches above the mattress. Since its bulb is shielded, a pendant-type lamp can be a little higher than eye level.

Add To Modern Living's Problems -- Waste Disposal

A national organization has appointed a committee to look into a problem that faces the entire nation: what to do with the waste we create.

The National Council of Refuse Disposal Trade Associations selected a panel of experts including three Chicago area men, to examine the problem and to come up with possible solutions.

Council president Dean Buntrock, of 4730 W. Harrison St., Chicago, said the United States faces a twin problem: our growing population, increasingly high standard of living and new methods of packaging lead to more and more garbage, trash and other forms of waste, while the development of more and more residential communities reduces the number of available disposal sites.

State Medical Society Tells About Frostbite

Illinois Medical Society
An ever-present winter health hazard, particularly for those who stay out of doors for long periods, is that of frostbite. Tho the very young and old are most vulnerable to the condition, anyone -- of any age -- is susceptible.

How does one recognize frostbite? Check the suspected area. If it's stiff and numb, the skin is white or bright pink and possibly swollen, chances are it's frostbitten.

If your family doctor is not immediately available, follow this advice: keep the frozen part in lukewarm water for 10 minutes, blot it dry gently, then keep the area dry and warm. Above all, remember:

Dairy Council Takes Big Swing At Food Faddists

Food faddists do a grave injustice to the intelligent public. For 50 years the American Medical association's bureau of investigation has acted as a clearing house for information about quacks and their methods of operation. Here's their rule of thumb for spotting them.

The quacks always have something to sell, a course of lectures, pills, tonics, etc.

Guarantee quick cures -- on a money-back basis, such as "if your arthritis isn't cured within eight days."

Often claim to be "medical experts" or "nutritionists" with some secret formula or knowledge that will cure and they usually boast membership in a "scientific society."

Use testimonies and case histories to prove their products miraculous, not facts based on carefully controlled studies reported in reputable medical journals and confirmed by independent workers.

Distort scientific data to suit their own ends.

Say the food you are eating is poisoned and they way you cook is all wrong.

Claim to be persecuted by medical men or governmental agencies because, they insist, big business controls medicine and the Food and Drug Administration.

Tell you that surgery, x-rays or drugs will cause more harm than good.

How can you protect yourself from these faddists?

The very best way is to check with reliable sources, such as your doctor or dentist, medical and dental societies, health departments and voluntary health agencies, Better Business Bureaus and Federal Food and Drug administration.

Make it a rule to consult your doctor about your health problems and follow his advice. Avoid self-treatment. As a rule, most health products are not harmful. However, the danger lies in delay in diagnosis and adequate treatment. Next article -- "Food Facts or Fallacies."

Editor's note: This is the first in a series of articles

Chain Letter Bond Scheme

The U.S. Treasury is cautioning the public against the current rash of Savings Bonds "chain letter" schemes.

"U.S. Savings Bonds themselves are an absolutely safe investment, free from elements of risk because the principal and interest are fully guaranteed by our government", Arnold J. Rauhen, state director of the U.S. Savings bonds division said today. "However, these schemes for acquiring savings bonds 'for nothing' are a risky gamble."

He said that "the post office department's experience with endless chain schemes over a period of many years is that most participants lose their entire investment. This outcome is inevitable because the supply of interested persons is soon exhausted. The greater the amount to be invested, the sooner the saturation point is reached."

"Some organizers of the new 'chain letter' plans imply that the government and banks approve of the idea in order to increase bond sales", Mr. Rauhen continued. "This is not true. The treasury department, thru the Federal Reserve Bank, has instructed banks and other issuing agencies to reject applications for the purchase of savings bonds where the applicant states, or where the issuing agent has reason to believe, that the bonds will be used in the chain letter scheme."

Do not expose the frostbitten area to direct heat from an open fire, radiator or heating pad or by plunging it into really hot water.

Do not rub or massage a frostbitten part with or without snow for this can damage the tissues made brittle by the cold and open the way for infection by breaking the skin.

Do not walk if your feet are frostbitten because walking can also damage the tissue and open the way to infection.

Feet, nose, ears and fingers are most often affected because they're the most exposed and, in the case of the feet and fingers, the farthest from the warm central blood supply.

Frostbite can be dangerous, for extreme cold -- especially moist cold -- may constrict the surface blood vessels to the point where it cuts off the blood supply. Thus deprived of nourishment, the affected area begins to wither -- and that's when gangrene sets in.

The doctor usually puts a frostbite victim to bed, slowly brings the temperature of the affected part back to normal and watches for the possible development of gangrene. The painful part of frostbite comes with the thawing or warming of the affected area. It usually becomes red or bluish, swells and throbs or burns.

Hunger and malnutrition make one more susceptible to frostbite. Fatigue and exhaustion are factors which reduce the body's vitality and slow up the circulation.

Warm clothing is a strong preventative against frostbite. It should be of the type to permit circulation of the air and to dry perspiration, since dampness is also a consideration in frostbite.

Some persons are more susceptible to cold temperatures than others, but everyone can take the necessary precautions of keeping comfortable with the elements by wearing proper clothing and eating the essential foods to maintain body stamina.

Avoid frostbite by preventing it.
